Important: This file is a project source snapshot prepared from the official source listed above. It is not an official publication of the university or Australian Government. It is intended for the team's local RAG knowledge-base experiments and should be refreshed before final deployment.

Student visa work condition

- Student visa holders cannot work before starting their course.
- While the course is in session, student visa holders can generally work up to 48 hours per fortnight.
- Different rules apply to certain research master's and doctoral students; the exact visa conditions should always be checked for the individual visa holder.

Knowledge-base boundary

This source should be treated as the authoritative source for student visa work conditions. Do not substitute university pages for immigration rules.
