Study Australia — Working and Accommodation Guidance

Entity: Australian Government — Study Australia

Snapshot date: 2026-09-27

Source URL: https://www.studyaustralia.gov.au/en_in/tools-and-resources/tips-and-advice-for-students/working-in-australia-your-rights-explained

Important: This file is a project source snapshot prepared from the official source listed above. It is not an official publication of the university or Australian Government. It is intended for the team's local RAG knowledge-base experiments and should be refreshed before final deployment.

Working while studying

- International students can work while studying in Australia subject to applicable restrictions.
- Study Australia describes a 48-hours-per-fortnight limit during study terms/semesters.
- International students have workplace protections like other workers.

Accommodation

- Study Australia describes short-term accommodation, renting a house or apartment, and shared housing as common options for international students.
- Students should consider support from their education provider when finding accommodation.